

One Way of Saving a Baby—Free to Try

The mother does not live who would not do all in her power to keep her child healthy, but often she does not know how. So when a doctor of standing points the way all can afford to listen.

It is an accepted fact that nine out of ten of the troubles of infants and children are intestinal. You notice it by the fact that the child is constipated, it belches, is peevish and cries. Don't give a remedy that contains an opiate, because the child will get in the habit of needing it, and don't become alarmed and run at once for a doctor.

Try a scientific laxative first. Give a small dose of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, the remedy that is intended for the use of children. It is mild, gentle and non-gripping. The remedy is absolutely pure and is guaranteed in every particular. Mrs. Toomey of Emigsville, Pa., and Mrs. Fred Crooms of Alanson, Mich., never give their children anything else. These are only a few among thousands of women.

You can buy a fifty cent or one dollar bottle of any nearby druggist, for they have all sold it for a generation, but if you want to test it on your child first send your address to Dr. Caldwell and he will cheerfully send you a free sample bottle.

Dr. Caldwell does not feel that the purchase of his remedy ends his obligation. He has specialized in stomach, liver and bowel diseases for over forty years and will be pleased to give the reader any advice on the subject free of charge. All are welcome to write him. Whether for the medical advice or the free sample address him Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 541 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

ACCIDENT AVERTED

SOME ONE "SPIKED" SWITCH AT MOUNDS, ILL.

Fact That Train Was Going at a Moderate Speed Prevented Its Derailment.

Calro, Ill., Dec. 30.—The little city of Mounds had been the scene of an awful railroad wreck Wednesday night, according to the story told by citizens of Mounds yesterday.

It was said some fiend in human shape threw the lower switch and spiked it on the Illinois Central track south of town some time shortly before the arrival of No. 23, passenger train from Chicago, which leaves Mounds about 9:50 o'clock. The north-bound main track is east of the south-bound track and the switch was thrown so as to run the south-bound train over on the opposite track. A train going at an ordinary rate of speed would have been derailed by the short turn, but it was said the train had not gotten good headway and it was this fact that prevented an accident. The train got partly over the switch before it was stopped. Had the switch been thrown after No. 23 had passed the Seminole limited, which does not stop at Mounds, and going at the rate of 40 to 50 miles an hour, the result is too awful to contemplate. The Seminole limited passed Mounds only a short time after No. 23 had left the station.

BAR MRS. HOWE'S PORTRAIT. Will Not Be Placed in Fannell Hall, as Suggested.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 29.—The municipal arts commission has refused to permit a portrait of the late Mrs. Julia Ward Howe to be placed in Fannell Hall. Shortly after the death of the author of the "Battle Hymn of the Republic" a memorial committee made preparations to have a portrait of her painted and placed in Fannell Hall. Secretary J. Templeman Coolidge, Jr., of the municipal arts commission, said today the commission had decided to refuse to sanction this and that a more appropriate memorial to Mrs. Howe would be a bust in the Boston public library.

Portraits of Washington, Lincoln and other famous Americans hang in "the cradle of liberty."

HOSSEY FLIES OVER MOUNTAIN

PERFORMS FEAT THAT PLEASES
ARMY OFFICERS.

10,005 Feet in the Sky and Cleared
Mt. Wilson, in California, by 4,200 Feet.

LANHAM HAD A CLOSE CALL.

Los Angeles, Dec. 30.—Arch Hoxsey, of Pasadena, Cal., holder of the world's aeroplane altitude record, 11,740 feet, flew over Mt. Wilson, the highest peak of the mountain range that rims the valley in which Los Angeles, Pasadena and the towns of the orange belt lie. Under ideal weather conditions he soared 10,005 feet into the sky and cleared the crest of Mt. Wilson with 4,200 feet to spare.

Lieut. Vernon Bolter and several other army officers who are here to see the flights, were quick to observe in Hoxsey's performance a new way of transporting armies across mountain ranges, and predicted the early relegation of the army mule as an essential in scaling heights.

Lieut. Bolter, who came here from Fort Whipple, Ariz., said that a thousand biplanes could transport an army of ten thousand men across mountains as high as the Alps in a day.

Hoxsey used a heavy Wright biplane equipped for passenger service, and made the journey from the field to a point beyond the mountains in 1 hour and 28 minutes. The distance is estimated at 24 miles.

Hoxsey's performance was the only interesting feat today, but just before the close of the afternoon events the crowd got a thrill by an accident that nearly resulted in the death of Hubert Latham, the French aeroplane expert, who made a valiant attempt to save Glenn Martin, the California novice, when the latter lost control of his machine and was blown far to the south of the field, where he narrowly escaped disaster several times among the high wires and trees. By skillful maneuvering of his machine he finally struck back to the course and the crash came as he was trying to make a landing.

Two or three thousand men and women were within a few feet of him when he fell into the wire fence in front of the grand stand.

Latham was in front of the judges' box when Martin brought his machine to the earth.

The Frenchman immediately realized the danger, and rushing out caught hold of the machine and desperately tried to turn it away from the fence. But he miscalculated its speed and was dashed to the ground. The running gear of the machine, which weighs 500 pounds, missed Latham's face only by a few inches, and Martin and his biplane sped into the fence with force enough to break the iron posts.

Martin was hurled over the fence but he got up uninjured.

He Passed.

Chief Justice White is a pretty good story teller. He was formerly a Louisiana sugar planter, and this is one of the stories attributed to him: Two negroes on a Louisiana plantation became involved in a row with another Ethiopian who was handy with a gun. The two started to run just about the time the bad man began to shoot. The fleeing ones had proceeded about a hundred yards when the following dialogue occurred: "Sam, you hear dat bullet?" "Yes I hear it—two times." "How you mean two times?" asked the questioner as he quickened his pace. "I hear dat bullet once when it passed me, and den anudder time when I passed it," jerked out Sam between short breaths.—Buffalo Commercial.

Johnnie Was Literal.

Little Johnnie was discovered in the library, busily snipping away at the open dictionary.

"Johnnie," asked the father "what in the world are you doing?"

"You see, father," answered the bright and shining light of the house hold, "today at school the teacher said there was no such word as 'fall' and so I'm cutting it out of the dictionary."—Judge.

SOMETHING NEW FOR COUGHS.

Make It Yourself.

Until the discovery of the wonderful new drug product, Mentho-Laxene, everybody had to rely on ordinary cough mixtures, usually composed of morphine, opium and the like; but now the most effective and popular cough syrup is made at home with essence mentho-laxene. Here is the formula: Essence mentho-laxene, 2 1/2 Ozs.; Granulated Sugar Syrup, 1 1/2 Ozs. Buy of your druggist, or have him order it from the wholesaler, two and one-half ounces of essence mentho-laxene; empty it into a pint bottle and fill up the bottle with granulated sugar syrup. To make the syrup, use a pint of sugar and a half pint of boiling water, stir it, let cool and mix it with the mentho-laxene.

This makes a fine curative laxative cough syrup superior to anything you can buy at four times the price. Take in teaspoonful doses 3 to 10 times daily. It loosens the tightest cough in an hour, and is fine for old people and for children for they like to take it, and by its tone, cleansing, healing and laxative properties it prevents pneumonia, lung fever and other complications of colds.

In case too bad for it to overcome.

AT THE KENTUCKY.

Tonight—Rose Melville in "Sis Hopkins."

Monday night—"California Girl," (burlesque.)

Wednesday—"Madame X."

STAR—Lady Mairiel.

GEM—Pictures.

The popularity of Sis Hopkins which will be at the Kentucky tonight, does not lessen a particle as the years roll by. It was eleven years ago that Miss Rose Melville, who plays the title role in this remarkably sweet and clean tale of country life, originated the type of character which has made her famous wherever plays are given, and in that time she has done the part over 5,000 times. This is her twelfth tour and her last, for at the close of the present season she will retire from the stage and Sis Hopkins will be a pleasing and fragrant memory.

"Madame X."

The Chattanooga (Tenn.) News says:

Sustained intensity of interest from the first word of the prologue to the curtain, breathless surrender to rare dramatic power, and the unshamed shedding of tears characterized the reception given by three large audiences of Chattanooga to the Henry W. Savage production of "Madame X" with Miss Mabel Montgomery in the leading role and supported by a remarkably well balanced cast.

To the minutest detail the production exhibits a marvellously successful selection of histrionic ability coupled with the most careful provision of scenic accessories. The ensemble combines genius of literary achievement with genius of dramatic skill.

The result of Chattanooga is that patrons of the Albert are left with memories of a great experience by Warfield in "The Music Master."

Miss Montgomery is nothing less than superb in meeting the heavy demands of Bisson's very impressive character and the most pronounced managerial success from the standpoint of the box office is richly merited by this production of "Madame X." In the realm of its kind, it has proven the most notable attraction of the year in Chattanooga.

The company left here for Lexington, Ky., this morning.

Time for Improvement.

It was on the day of Colonel Roosevelt's arrival in New York, after his triumphant progress abroad. The enthusiasm for "the man of the hour" had been imparted even to the bootblacks, and two sons of Italy were excitedly vying with each other in extolling the colonel while they polished shoes.

"Roosevelt he da grata da man in da world," declared one of the bootblacks, waving his shining cloth.

"You don't really mean that, do you?" asked the man who cupped his chair.

"Sure I do. Roosevelt he da grata da man in da world," the Italian answered with conviction, and then he added: "He da grata da man ever lived."

"Come, come, you don't mean to say that Roosevelt is a greater man than Lincoln," his patron said.

"Yes, grata da man dan Linc. Roosevelt he da grata da man in da world."

"You wouldn't say that he is greater than George Washington, would you?" pursued the amused patron.

"Yes, grata da man dan George Wash."

"Well, would you say that he is greater than Garibaldi?"

The Italian hesitated and scratched his head. Then he answered, "Well, Roosevelt he da younga man yet."—Success Magazine.

HORRIBLE CANNIBALISM YET PRACTICED BY CERTAIN TRIBES IN NEW GUINEA

The lieutenant governor of the British portion of New Guinea has just come home for a brief holiday, and according to the London correspondent of the Washington (D. C.) Post, he has found the opportunity to make his countrymen's flesh creep with tales of cannibalism as still practiced by natives under his jurisdiction. The interior of New Guinea, it should be noted, is perhaps the largest terra incognita remaining on the earth's surface, and according to Governor Murray it hides many mysteries.

The native Papuans are divided into many distinct tribes, primitive and barbarous, but in some respects of high native intelligence. They are easily won over from barbarism and induced to take up some form of employment. The governor during his trips into the interior heard constantly of a race of long tailed, pigmies who dwelt just over the mountains, but exploration always brought the answer that they were farther on. The interior Papuan village wholly consists of a single building, from 200 to 600 feet long and about 70 feet high. It is divided into tunnel-like compartments, capable of sheltering as many as 1,500 persons. In front of the building is a platform whereon the cannibal feasts take place. Governor Murray recently arrived at one of these villages in time to be present at the eating of a fresh roasted body. He says:

"The bodies are placed on the platform, skinned, and afterward roasted. The flesh is cut up into small portions, sprinkled with sago, wrapped in leaves and distributed. The hero of the day—the man who has done the most killing—then mounts the platform, and after much brandishing throws a lighted torch to the ground, thus signifying that the entire male population is privileged to make love to his wife. That is the highest honor the tribe has in its power to confer upon him for his day's prowess. There are less pretentious cannibal exploits on a smaller scale. It is a point of Papuan etiquette that you must not eat the man you have killed, but you may satisfy your conscience by exchanging victims with another man, having first sealed the compact by disfiguring the corpse in accordance with conventional rules. Many of the tribes have their own notions of how cannibalism should be conducted. In some districts the victims are roasted, while in others boiling is preferred. I have known instances in which the process of cooking is done over a fire, the body being sandwiched between two layers of sago. Some of the tribes have a weakness for eating babies and organize raids on neighboring villages for the purpose of kidnapping infants."

Discussing other characteristics of this interesting race, Governor Murray says: "I do not think the average Papuan has the slightest fear of death. I have known a native when charged with murder to fall fast asleep within five minutes of the beginning of the trial. As judge I have sentenced a man to death while he yawningly reminded me that he was tired of the whole legal formality."

"The attitude of lethargy is a characteristic of the race. While fighting had to be done the Papuan kept himself prepared for eventualities and allowed his wife to do the work. Now that tribal warfare has almost disappeared among the people on the coast line, the warrior pleads that it would be a national disaster to regard the woman as the weaker sex, and so he permits her to go on with the work while he arranges to do as little as possible."

"The male Papuan is more or less the creature of indolence, but directly he is taken in hand he becomes disciplined with astonishing readiness. Ask a native in his primitive days to fetch a wheelbarrow, and he immediately takes it up in his arms and handles it as a fond mother would carry a child. I have seen Papuan men when first given a spade lay it on the ground, pile the soil on so simple an utterance does not permit of explanation, even by the most profound Papuan, but the awe inspired by the mystic word is very real, indeed."
